

WELLNESS REGULATIONS – A COMPLIANCE ALPHABET SOUP

Join us for a June 15 web meeting

Even though employer wellness programs have been a great way to promote better health and help control health care costs for many years, the compliance obligations related to these programs have been evolving. Federal regulations under the Affordable Care Act (ACA) are just one set of rules that impact wellness programs. Recent new regulations also provide important guidance as to how wellness programs can comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and the Genetic Information Nondiscrimination Act (GINA).

Please join us on Wednesday, June 15 from 3:00 – 4:00 p.m. ET for a complimentary Health Care Reform web meeting as we discuss how employers can best navigate compliance with the various wellness regulations.

During the web meeting, we will:

- Review key aspects of the ACA, ADA and GINA wellness regulations, along with how they align and where they differ
- Offer insights on the nuances of the wellness rules, particularly around program design, incentives and information protection
- Provide practical examples and next steps for conducting successful and compliant workplace wellness programs

As always, there will be plenty of time to answer your questions – and to be sure we address your most pressing concerns, we're offering you the opportunity to submit questions in advance when you register.
